Separated : inside an American tragedy

by Jacob Soboroff

The award-winning NBC News and MSNBC correspondent presents a deeply personal report from America's borders on the wrenching human realities behind the Trump administration's infamous decision to systematically separate thousands of children from their migrant families. 100,000 first printing.

Kindred : Neanderthal life, love, death and art

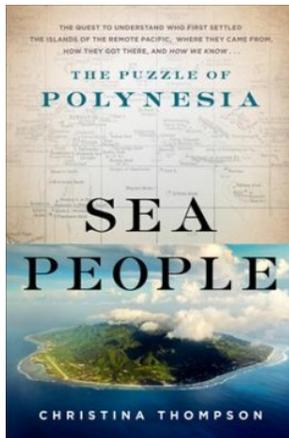

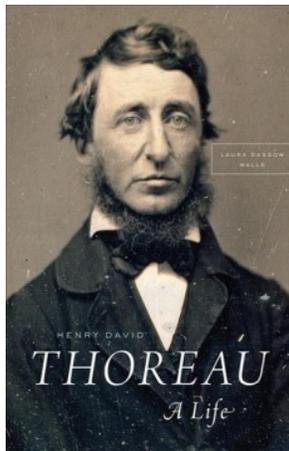

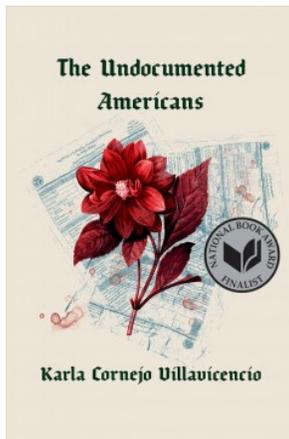

by Rebecca Wragg Sykes

Casting aside the cliché of the shivering ragged figure in an icy wasteland, this fascinating volume sheds new light on the Neanderthal and where they lived, what they ate and the increasingly complex Neanderthal culture that researchers have discovered. 30,000 first printing. Illustrations.

The undocumented Americans : A Homecoming

by Karla Cornejo Villavicencio

An Ivy League-educated DACA beneficiary reveals the hidden lives of her fellow undocumented Americans, from the volunteers recruited for the 9/11 Ground Zero cleanup to the homeopathy botanicas of Miami that provide limited health care to non-citizens.

Henry David Thoreau : a life

by Laura Dassow Walls

Traces the life of the poet best known for his meditations on nature at Walden Pond, who spent time with friend and neighbor Ralph Waldo Emerson and worked as a manual laborer, an inventor, and a radical political activist

Sea people : the puzzle of Polynesia

by Christina Thompson

Explores the origins of the Polynesian people, attempting to answer the questions about who founded and settled these remote Pacific islands in an era before writing or metal tools. 25,000 first printing.
